Dear Mr. Dulles:

I am writing to you directly in regard to a matter which I believe might be of great interest to you. I probably sound quite boastful ( for which please forgive me) in that I believe I have discovered something which could prove to be of great value to the government. While many uses could be found for it, the area which would be of greatest use to the government would probably be in subversive work.

While the discovery is something that cannot be seen, touched, or smelled; it is something which is decidedly effective. The discovery can be likened to hypnotizing a person in a fraction of a second while chatting and exchanging pleasantries with him.

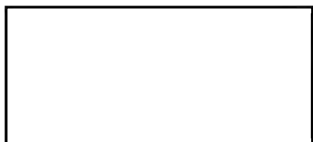

I wonder if it would be possible to discuss this with somebody who is absolutely trustworthy. I would then be free to cover the matter in greater detail.

I would most welcome an answer from you.

Very truly yours,
